Answer: Trench warfare reached its highest development on the Western Front during World War I (1914-18), when armies of millions of men faced each other in a line of trenches extending from the Belgian coast through northeastern France to Switzerland. These trenches arose within the first few months of the war's outbreak, after the great offensives launched by Germany and France had shattered against the deadly, withering fire of the machine gun and the rapid-firing artillery piece.

The first world war began in August 1914. It was directly triggered by the assassination of the Austrian archduke, Franz Ferdinand and his wife, on 28th June 1914 by Bosnian revolutionary, Gavrilo Princip. This event was, however, simply the trigger that set off declarations of war. The actual causes of the war are more complicated and are still debated by historians today.

World War One - Causes - History

A stagnant war fought from trenches, with neither side gaining or losing much ground in spite of huge casualties. One of the most dynamic front lines of the twentieth century. The first war front in history dominated by air power. A mostly inactive front, along which both sides took a primarily defensive stance, resulting in relatively few casualties.
